LETTERS

Plant, Cultivate, Nurture...THRIVE.

How do you help something thrive? You prepare the soil, plant a seed, and then you care for it – encouraging growth and development over time. This year, several long-term projects came to fruition. Thanks to the careful cultivation of founding Executive Director Ms. Lynda Gavioli and the time and talents of our Parenting Director Gatha Green, our region now has a Family Resource Center for the first time in five years. The center will host nurturing parenting classes and supportive services that help reunite families who are in the DCFS system.

Programs like this and our signature programs in Early Childhood Education, Healthy Living and Youth Development provide essential services to the children and families in Northeast Louisiana. As you read through the Annual Report, you will see that our numbers of participants are growing, our funding sources are expanding, and we continue to reach into the region to meet participants where they are.

Here is what you won't see: the talented staff that create and sustain these programs. It is through their care and commitment that the Children's Coalition for Northeast Louisiana can respond quickly to community need. When our area flooded, the staff rallied with the help of United Way to distribute over 20,000 diapers to families in our region. When state budget cuts threatened college funding, our staff worked with a local donor to create a scholarship program for area youth. Together, they are creating communities where children and families can truly thrive.

- Dr. Lynn Clark, Executive Director

After serving on the Board of Directors of the Children's Coalition for several years, I have witnessed amazing growth and success throughout the organization. I've had the privilege of working with both Lynda Gavioli, our founder, and her successor, Dr. Lynn Clark. Both ladies have always had a clear and concise vision of growing the organization as well as its programs.

This is an exciting time for the Coalition. Our vast array of programs benefits children from infancy, early childhood, school age, preteen and teenage years. We offer support for families as well. Each year, our reach becomes broader to benefit more children throughout the Northeast Louisiana Region.

This growth is largely due to the fantastic community support we receive from our membership and various programs. One of our largest fundraisers, Fashion Fusion, has grown by leaps and bounds since its beginning. Last year, we moved the event from the West Monroe Convention Center to the Monroe Civic Center Arena. While it was a frightening and daunting task, the event was once again a major success. We hosted the Dragon Boat Races on Bayou DeSiard this past spring as well. This event was a huge success and a great deal of fun for the entire community. We look to make both of these events even larger next year!

Please read through this annual report and visit our website, which gives more in-depth information on our programs and how they help to enrich children's lives daily. We cannot do this alone. We are a TRUE coalition, and our membership helps us to continue to produce outstanding events and programs. Without you, none of this would be possible. I encourage everyone to join us in this remarkable journey as we continue to make a difference in children's lives as well as their families and the community.

NEW PROGRAMS

Thanks to generous donors and new funding at the state and federal levels, we were able to grow our programming in all four of our focus areas. Programs like the Family Resource Center for Northeast Louisiana and Jus4Me bring parenting to families in the DCFS system and teen parents in area high schools. The Children's Coalition Institute is only one of four programs chosen in the state to train early childhood teachers in the new Ancillary Teaching Certificate, and the Baby Bayou exhibit at the Children's Museum shows parents and educators a model of brain-based learning. Finally, the new "Next Step" Scholarship program provided youth in the Parenting, Healthy Living and Youth Development programs with college scholarships.
